

Contributing [1]

There are many ways you can contribute to Mnemosyne.

Share cards or plugins you have created.

More instructions on how to share cards are here [2].

Contribute or assist with a translation.

You can translate Mnemosyne into a new language online here [3].

Have an idea for a new feature in the software?

Suggest a new feature or vote on existing suggestions. [4]

Contribute code to Mnemosyne

If you are a developer, you can contribute code. More information on how to do so can be found here. [5]

Credits

Mnemosyne would not be what it is today without the contributions from many members of the community, whose support is gratefully acknowledged:

- Julian Mehne, for many fixes and organising the move to github.
- Patrick Kenny, webmaster extraordinaire who also kickstarted the 2.0 OSX installers
- Devin Howard, current maintainer of the OSX installers
- Johannes Baiter, for porting many features to 2.0, like tip of the day, XML import, ...
- Timothy Bourke, for the original Java client and many plugins
- Geirr Nome, master bug reporter
- Ed Bartosh, Max Usachev, Ullrich Martini for many contributions during the 2.0 writing phase
- Mike Appleby, for the graphical statistics
- Konrad Wojas, for work on the OSX version and architectural suggestions
- Felix Engel, for many contributions
- Joonatan Kaartinen, for useful insights
- Ryan Michael, for kickstarting the analysis of the uploaded logs
- Dirk Herrmann, for Supermemo import and lots of patches
